Writing Junction

Naming part

Telling part

A sentence has two parts – a naming part and telling part. The naming part is a naming word. It says whom or what the sentence is about. The telling part tells us different things about the naming part.

Examples

Three travellers came to the village.

Three travellers came to the village.

A villager went home and came back with some carrots.

Veda filled it with water.

Aman and Veda are hungry.

Read the sentences. Circle the naming part and underline the telling part.

- a. Binny walks to school.
- b. Sheela drinks milk at night.
- c. The books are under the table.
- d. Hari likes to play football.
- e. My mother baked a cake on my birthday.

Look at the picture and match the naming part to the correct telling part:

a. The man	is near the slide.
b. One street lamp	is sitting on a bench.
c. The dog	are on the grass.
d. The children	are playing on the slide.
e. The pigeons	is sitting near the man.

LEARNING OUTCOME:

The learners understand parts of sentence and frame sentences using simple words.
